

Application Background:

TODOERIST is a web application designed to streamline task management through an intuitive interface. Our application, built using Angular framework, offers users a comprehensive to-do list manager to organize their tasks efficiently.

Frameworks and Components:

Angular framework forms the backbone of our application, providing a robust structure for building dynamic and responsive web applications. We have utilized Angular's powerful features such as components, modules, and services to create a seamless user experience. Additionally, we have integrated Angular Material components to ensure consistency and accessibility across different devices and browsers.
